CONSERVING OF COAL IS NECESSARY

Commercial Association is Asked to Help in Bringing the Need Before the Public

SERIOUS SITUATION AHEAD

The coal shortage of the present winter bids fair to surpass that of the past, and it is thus behooves everyone to conserve coal in every possible way. Realizing the seriousness of the situation the Public Utilities Commission of the state has seen fit to appeal to the Commercial associations of the various towns for aid in bringing the necessity of "coal conservation" directly before the public. The following letter was received by the Antioch Association and was read at the meeting Monday evening.

"Whereas, it is a matter of common knowledge that by reason of the cessation of the production of coal in the country a coal shortage is imminent, if, indeed, it is not acute at the present time; and

Whereas, it is necessary to conserve the supply of fuel now on hand for what may be termed "absolutely essential purposes," it necessarily follows that the unnecessary use of fuel for what may be designated "non essential purposes" should be discontinued; and

Whereas, the Public Utilities Commission of Illinois, having in view the necessity of the continuance of operation of the utilities affording transportation, light, heat and power for what is absolutely necessary for the public health and safety, and desiring to aid in the conservation of fuel for such purposes, does hereby notify all public utility corporations in the State of Illinois that it is the opinion and request of the Public Utilities Commission that all unnecessary and non-essential use of gas and electric current should be at once discontinued.

In this connection it is the desire of the Commission that all unnecessary illuminations for advertising purposes, including signs and window lighting, should be immediately discontinued.

It is further the desire and request of the Commission that all power dependent upon coal as its productive force should be limited as far as possible to service involving the public health, safety and the living necessities of the people, and that all service involving economic production should be limited as far as possible to what is absolutely essential, and that services designed mainly for public convenience should be curtailed to the limit.

The Commission requests all Municipal associations to immediately meet and consult in what way there may be a further conservation of fuel within their respective localities.

The commission, being in a position to know the conditions which confront this state in common with the country at large, and being desirous of doing everything in its power to aid in the conservation of fuel and thereby assist in this crisis, which appears to be close at hand. All public utilities and the public generally should take such action as will aid in this work of conservation.

By order of the Commission, at Springfield, Illinois, this 28th day of November, 1919.

R. Allan Stephens,
Secretary."

Good Roads Plan is Now Assured of Success

The Antioch Commercial Association held a meeting Monday evening at which time several matters of importance were brought up for discussion.

The road fund committee reported that they now had a sufficient number of pledges signed to assure the success of the road improvement plan.

A committee composed of Nason Sibley, Frank Dunn and John Dupre was appointed to investigate the quality of the gravel, relative to its adaptability for road work, in the various pits in this vicinity and to report the result of the investigation at the meeting next Monday evening.

"If you owned a home in a nice little town

Where you watched the traffic go by, Wouldn't you rather the street would be nice and neat

Than a blot 'neath the beautiful sky? If you'd rather see autos stuck deep in the mud

Than see them roll past with content, If you'd rather see holes where they'd sink to the hub

Than view a nice street of cement, If you'd rather your town would be named in a book

As a place for tourists to shun, Than be listed as one where all is complete

And inviting for strangers to come, Then sit back and kick, and preach ruination

And don't give a cent to this Association."

The Sad Tale of a Mule Settled at Last

Friday, Dec. 5th, will be visitors day at the Antioch Township High School and it is hoped that as many parents as are interested in the work which their children are doing will make a big effort to come to the school on that day and visit the classes in the morning from 9:00 to 12:00 and in the afternoon from 1:00 to 1:40 p. m. Exhibits of work done in Manual Training, Mechanical Drawing, Latin, Mathematics, Domestic Art, Science and Biology are being prepared and demonstrations of sewing with the various sewing machine attachments will be given. A number of students in Physics will also perform regular laboratory experiments for the benefit of any who may be interested.

The program to be given at 2:30 will consist of music by the High School Girls' Glee club and the High School Orchestra, miscellaneous numbers and a patriotic address to be given by Senator Rodney B. Swift of Libertyville. Those who know Senator Swift and who have heard him speak will be glad of the opportunity of hearing him at this time.

In the evening at 8:00 p. m., there will be two basketball games between the first and second teams of the Antioch Township High School and the first and second teams of the Wauconda High School.

Falls Down Elevator Shaft; Asks $20,000 Damages

Williams Brothers' store was made defendant in a suit for $20,000 damages filed in circuit court last Saturday by Michael Golden who asks damages for injuries received when he plunged down an elevator shaft in the store. This incident happened June 2, 1919.

Golden asserts that there is a rear opening to the store through a dark, unlighted hall. Customers, he says, are invited to use this entrance. The elevator shaft, he says, leads from this hall and on the day in question was unprotected by a railing or guard so that he plunged down, breaking several bones, injuring his spine and inflicting internal injuries from which he says he never will recover.

He maintains that the owners of the store were negligent in not providing lights in the hallway and also for leaving the elevator shaft unprotected.

MILLIONAIRES ARE SUING COUNTY

Bill for Injunction Involves Over Two Millions in Back Taxes

COUNTY CLERK ENJOINED

Reuben H. Donnelly, prominent Chicago directory publisher and one of the executors in the estate of Mrs. Laura Thorne Donnelly, deceased Lake Forest and Chicago resident Wednesday filed in the Lake county circuit court at Waukegan a bill of injunction against the county clerk of Lake county, Lew A. Hender, to prevent the board of review from putting upon the county treasurer's books for taxation property valued at $614,000 full value upon which the board is seeking to collect taxes alleged to have been omitted from taxation for 7 years and upon which the board now seeks to levy against a total of $1534,990, full assessed value.

A similar bill was also filed by Chas. R. Thorne of Lake Forest and Chicago, executor for the estate of George R. Thorne, upon which the county seeks to collect back taxes on a full value of $162,500 for each of five years, or a total of $812,500.

The filing of the bills followed the adjournment of the board Tuesday, the board signing and turning over the assessor's books to the county clerk, who started spreading the taxes for the purpose of turning them over to the county treasurer for collection.

The injunctions were filed by Attorneys Winston, Strawn and Shaw of Chicago, with C. W. Diver of Waukegan and George A. Kelly and Paul J. Donovan as solicitors for the plaintiffs.

The petitions state that the board through their attorney, Eugene Runyard and the attorney general represented by Paul MacGuffin, took fraudulent and illegal action when they filed unsworn petitions before the review board and then fixing the values with out producing any testimony in support of their claim that the full value had been omitted from the personal property schedules as charged. The petitioners also contend they have the county's receipt in full for the payment of their taxes for the years above mentioned and therefore the county can have no further claim upon them, as previous boards and their assessors approved their tax schedule.

The filing of the petitions was held up since August because of the fact the books were not turned over to the county clerk until now, the review board having an unusually busy session as it filed similar petitions against nearly two score Highland Park, Lake Forest and Waukegan millionaires, involving back taxes on approximately $12,000,000 worth of personal property. The filing of petitions for injunction by individual property owners against the county is anticipated, as many undoubtedly will follow the lead of Executors Reuben H. Donnelly and George R. Thorne.

Death of Miss Florence Brogan Occurred Sunday

On Sunday morning at eight thirty o'clock, at Willow Brook sanitarium occurred the death of Miss Florence Brogan of this place, after an illness of many months, tuberculosis being the cause.

The deceased, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brogan, was born in Antioch township on the 27th day of August 1880, and grew to womanhood in this vicinity.

For several years she was employed as a clerk in the stores of this village but failing health compelled her to give up her work about two years ago. Although her health was failing her decline was not rapid until she contracted the flu last winter and since that time she has never been able to be about.

In May of the present year she was taken to a sanitarium at Ottawa but after a few weeks stay there, a desire to be nearer home caused her to move to Willow Brook where she has remained every since.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Ned Bates and Mrs. Barney Naber of Antioch and Mrs. George Yopp of Burlington, and five brothers, Tom of Chicago, Ralph of Evanston and John, Charles and Will of Antioch, besides a large number of other relatives and friends.

The remains were brought to the home of her brother John in this village Sunday afternoon, and the funeral was held at St. Peter's church Wednesday morning at ten o'clock with burial at Mt. Carmel.

Antioch Defeats Gurnee at Basket Ball

The basket ball game played last Friday between Antioch and Gurnee first teams on the home floor was a lively one. The final score of the first team game was 16-19 in favor of Antioch.

The crowd was not large, due probably to the rainy weather. Gurnee was represented by a fine bunch of boosters, which comprised nearly half the spectators. The team was aided by the yelling Yahoos, which formed an echo in the Gurnee enthusiasts.

The teams were well matched, neither had a distinctive advantage. Two or three Gurnee players were "knocked out" for a few seconds but this only heightened the excitement. The first half the players were cool, warming up until the last half was a regular scramble. Both were undaunted in their determination to win, and showed some brilliant play. The entire game was fair and fast.

The two second teams also played. Antioch again carried the laurels with the score 22-16. It was almost as exciting as the first teams' game and quite as interesting.

The famous Morris vs. Doyle mule case came up for a hearing in the circuit court Monday. Attorney Beaubien explained that his client Mr. Morris was ill and unable to be present and asked for a continuance but Judge Edwards declined to grant it, taking the position that there were sufficient witnesses to make a trial possible without the presence of Mr. Morris. The defendant Mr. Doyle won the suit.

The original value of the mule was $225. Litigation started over six years ago. The case has been tried three times. Witness and attorney's fees have amounted to thousands of dollars. Morris won the case twice. The jury disagreed at the third trial.

Morris claims to have placed a mule in Doyle's pasture and that later when he asked that it be returned to him Doyle sent back a decrepit old animal that was practically worthless. He says Doyle insisted that it was his mule and that he was obliged to replevin his own mule.

Doyle instituted suit immediately, charging that Morris had been given his own mule and had replevined one that did not belong to him. Then ensued the lengthy litigation. Veterinarians and experts of various kinds were called in as witnesses, the fees in some cases amounting to $50 per day. Doyle now demands the return of the mule and damages for the use of the animal at the rate of $10. per month for 75 months.

"HIDDEN ARMY EXISTS"

Says Adjutant General Dickson;
25,000 Red Guard
in this District

STATE MILITA HEAD WARNS

Adjutant General Frank S. Dickson of the Illinois State Militia gave a very stirring talk on present day conditions to a large meeting in Waukegan, Tuesday evening.

The audience gasped as General Dickson, not for the purpose of causing alarm among his hearers but for the purpose of stimulating interest in the Chamber of Commerce, threw a feeling of terror into the audience by saying: "I believe the next eighteen months in the government is the most dangerous of any eighteen months we have had even during the period of war. Twenty-seven pages of typewritten reports have come to me lately and I tell you this secret, not to alarm you, but to show you the importance of rising to the emergency that in this district, which includes Waukegan and is known as the Chicago district, there are tonight 25,000 Red Guards, or Bolsheviks, constituting an army that is really in existence.

"I hope the time will come soon when we will do away with molly-codding and have a congress that will pass laws which will take care of this menacing situation and that the people, on the other hand, will then elect to office men who will think more of their oath of office, than of getting votes. When that is done you will get some place and until it is you are on the edge of a volcano. The situation in this country today is very, very grave."

He complimented the city of Waukegan on the manner in which its business men responded when they were called upon by the sheriff to patrol the strike zone and preserve order.

General Dickson said he did not know whether it was true in this part of the state or not, but he felt that in his portion of the state there is too much politics for the amount of patriotism in the district. He said that we need today the patriotism of the father and mother that existed in the years gone by. He felt as though the young man who stands on the street corner after he returns from college where his parents have sent him at great sacrifice and refers to the 'old man' or the 'old woman,' as the kind of fellow who is breeding trouble for his country.

He felt that the words 'honor thy father and mother' must be written over every hearthstone of every home of this land if our country is to endure with success.

"I believe tonight that our government is facing the most critical condition in the history of the nation," said the general. "If I only dared tell you people what I actually know as to the conditions in this country you would realize there has never been so much need of loyalty, not the 'lip' kind, but from the heart out. Accordingly we have never needed the patriotism that we need at this moment."

"I hope that the time will come when all the world will be served with notice that this is no place for any flag but the Stars and Stripes, and that this no place for any language but one, namely the English language; and that it is no place for any newspaper except the one printed in the English language."

In closing his talk, General Dickson made an urgent plea for an inspiration of loyalty, patriotism, honesty, fair dealings, human sympathy and optimism in this community. He felt that if every citizen bent himself toward that end the community would be helped very materially.

During General Dickson's talk the audience went "wild" several times and not only was there hand-clapping, but guests stamped their feet in their enthusiasm. Never has a more stirring appeal for patriotism and loyalty been heard in this section of the country.

900 FLU CASES REPORTED TO HEALTH SERVICE

Washington dispatches state that there were over 900 flu cases reported to the public health service last week. This is an increase over the previous week, and as cold weather draws near, authorities are worried.

A recent public health report says: "City officials, state and city boards of health should be prepared in event of an recurrence of the flu."

Even if one recovers from the flu, the after effects are terrible. The only sane thing to do is to prevent the flu. Influenza can be prevented; last year's results prove that. It is important that a good germicide should be used frequently. Turpo is an effective germicide, combining the old-fashioned remedies of turpentine (which has for years been known as the best home germicide), camphor-menthol and pure mineral base. As a preventive for flu, Turpo has been a pronounced success.

Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day, and the flu germs will have little chance of getting a lodging and breeding place. Many physicians and hospitals use and recommend Turpo.

The fact that more than nine hundred cases of influenza have been reported to the United States Health Service makes it important that you prepare now. Buy a thirty-cent jar of Turpo of your druggist now while he has a supply on hand, and use as directed.

If in spite of all precautions influenza develops, go to bed and summon a physician. Influenza is a serious malady, and requires the best medical attention.—Adv.

"It is as the Kanaka said," Gunga nodded. "Sahib, a question: How did you know of those Chinamen and Drink-House Sam?"

"One of them told me as he was dying," Wallen replied, "because, I suppose, I had nursed him as best I could through the night."

"Yes," Gunga nodded his head again. "But I will end first the Kanaka's tale so that the sahib will understand all else the better. The Kanaka had been a long time a member of the crew, long before the ship came to Honolulu."

"It was in Honolulu that for much money he was hired by one of Ram Gulab Singh's agents to kill the master."

"If he failed in that he was to stir up the crew to dream of the treasure-hunt, sahib, which, with so strange a voyage as theirs, would readily be believed, so that it might come about that the crew and officers would take things into their own hands, and would take the ship to the place Ram Gulab Singh had set down upon the paper, and where Ram Gulab Singh would lie in wait to work his will upon the master and upon them all, sahib, for dead men tell no tales. But for that paper, sahib, it so fell out, he had no need until you, by Allah's will, came also to the ship, as I have related. All this, sahib, I learned tonight while I lay hidden."

"Go on!" urged Wallen tensely. "I begin to see—a little. My father, Gunga—and this Ram Gulab Singh?"

"The young sahib is twenty-four," said Gunga. "It began two years before you were born. The master was a great merchant here, owning schooners by means of which he traded with the natives. Ram Gulab Singh was the native governor over a group of these islands."

"He was very powerful, and his wealth was beyond reckoning."

"Also, sahib, he was a murderer and a thief, whereby he had his wealth; and he hid his face behind the British government, whom he deceived. Your father lost one schooner and then another and many goods; and knowing in his heart that it was Ram Gulab Singh, he complained to the government. But because he could prove nothing, nothing was done, sahib; only that it came to the ears of Ram Gulab Singh, and he mocked your father, my master, by messengers in private."

"Sahib, my master was a brave man, and of great cunning. He loaded a schooner with such richness of goods that it was common talk; but also, in secret, he placed abundance of arms upon the vessel; and at night, as she sailed, he himself came aboard in the darkness with many men to join the crew, and of these I was one, sahib. "It came about as the master had foreseen."

"He sailed to the islands where Ram Gulab Singh was; and Ram Gulab Singh, knowing that it was your father's schooner, and thinking it a prize of great value, fell into the snare. Sahib, he came upon us with four prons, and our men lay hidden below the decks, that they might not be seen until the pirates, led by Ram Gulab Singh himself, boarded us from the prons."

"It was a fight, sahib, that I would to Allah I might see again before I die, for my arm is still strong and my blood is the blood of youth, and the years count not. They fought as reptiles fight who must either fight or die. But half escaped, and those by swimming to the prons which, in their first onslaught, after all had come on board of us, we had cut adrift from the schooner's sides."

"Many times in the melee my master tried to single out Ram Gulab Singh, that they might meet face to face, but it was only at the last the master came upon the other as Ram Gulab Singh was climbing over the rail to escape, and his hand was on the rail, but before he had dropped into the water the master's cutlass had severed three fingers from the hand of Ram Gulab Singh—such, sahib, is the reading of the paper with the one-fingered hand."

"Sahib, this time the government took heed, for we had prisoners who confessed; but against these Ram Gulab Singh sent many to take the oath that he had been elsewhere at the time. And so again there was not the full measure of proof, but my master pressed the matter and asked that an armed force be sent against Ram Gulab Singh. Sahib, if that had been done, all would have been well."

"Instead, the government deemed it wise to bring only great dishonor upon Ram Gulab Singh, and they stripped Ram Gulab Singh of all rank and authority, and for several years patrolled the waters of the island closely."

Gunga paused. The muscles of his face were twitching again—and the hard, flintlike gleam was back once more in the coal-black eyes that always swept the water, that never looked at Wallen.

"Sahib, it was because of your mother, before you were born, that the master left the East. The heart of Ram Gulab Singh was black with hate—and revenge filled his soul. It is too long a story to tell now, sahib. Great wealth was his; those in his pay were everywhere.

"Twice he tried to bring worse than death upon the master by attacks upon your mother. And the second time, sahib—Gunga's hands around the oars tightened until the knuckles were as white knobs protruding from the swarthy skin—"It was only by a miracle that she was saved. But, sahib, it killed her, even if it were months afterward when your father had hidden her in the gray house the sahib knows, for she was with child then, and when you were born she died."

"And then, sahib, the master stayed on there to protect you, as he had promised your mother he would do. But even there it was not further than the arm of Ram Gulab Singh could reach. Does the sahib remember the night as a child he crawled from bed and came down the stairs, and there was a man dead upon the floor?"

"I remember," said Wallen in a voice he did not recognize as his own. "And then, Gunga?"

"And then," said Gunga, "the young sahib went away; and the master had no longer any heart for anything but to stay on in the gray house. When next the master learned of you you were at sea, sahib; and after that he watched your comings and your goings always."

"And all this time Ram Gulab Singh gave no sign. Then came the time that word reached the master that you had taken berth upon the Upolo, to trade among the islands of Ram Gulab Singh—and upon the master fell again the old fire, for he knew that it was the hand of Ram Gulab Singh that struck."

"I sahib, he sent here immediately to spy upon them, and this I learned: Drink-House Sam, taking with him the Chinese of whom the sahib knows, was to Shanghai to wait the coming of the Tokamaru, the sahib's ship; and there at the time the Upolo was in port. He bribed the man who was mate to leave the vessel, and also some of the crew, that there might be room for the men he had brought; and then, through the influence of others of Ram Gulab Singh's agents in higher quarters, the captain, who was an honest man, sahib, was led to induce you to sail with him in the other's place."

"But sahib, all this I did not learn at once; and meanwhile your father, knowing what threatened, had stopped at Honolulu and chartered the Monlegh, as the sahib knows, to follow the Upolo in the hope that he might reach you in time before the work was done."

"Sahib, there is but of the murder of Drink-House Sam to tell. Here in Singapore I have crept into the house of the banker Loo, an old and crafty Chinese fox, who is the chief agent of Ram Gulab Singh. And it was there I learned of Drink-House Sam, who, though he was one of them, was hated by them because his demands for money were ever insistent, and because, sahib, with the years he knew too much to be refused."

"And there to that house came the Kanaka tonight; and there, too, came word that you had made trouble at Drink-House Sam's. And, sahib, as wolves that feed upon themselves, and because it would seem that the guilt would fall upon the stranger, upon you, sahib, who had come and fought already with Drink-House Sam tonight, they went, sahib, and did even as you have seen. Would the sahib, too, have paid with blood for his father's blood?"

"I meant to do that thing myself; because I could not escape from where I was hidden in the house until all were gone, I was too late. Sahib, the tale is told."

No word came from Wallen. For a long time he sat immovable—while a cloud obscured the moon, and the riding lights of the vessel gleamed and twinkled brighter in the greater darkness, and until the moonlight struggled forth again in a silver, wavering path—until there came a little splash in the distance, as though a fish had jumped.

Then Wallen raised his head. At the sound Gunga too had stirred, for now he dipped his oars and rowed on toward the Monlegh. And then he spoke again:

"Wash your hands, sahib," he said in low tones, "for they are red."

At the gangway Gunga sent the boat adrift with a push toward the Monlegh's stern; and Wallen, with the other behind him, mounted to the boat deck. There was no one on the bridge; and if there was an anchor-watch at all, the man was asleep, for they had come alongside unnoticed.

In the doorway of the captain's cabin Wallen halted, with Gunga beside him. There were empty glasses on the locker and an empty bottle. Captain Laynton fully dressed, was snoring in his bunk. He sat up with a start at Wallen's second knock.

"Hello!" he blinked. "Oh, you, Mr. Wallen! And—he blinked again at Gunga—"who's this you've got here?"

"My father's servant—Gunga," Wallen answered. "You remember, I asked you about him. Gunga, this is Captain Laynton."

The East Indian salaamed gravely and profoundly—and stepped respectfully back out onto the deck, away from the cabin.

Captain Laynton stared at Wallen. Then he rubbed his eyes and stared again.

"My word!" he ejaculated. "You look as though you'd been in a bally fight."

"Do I?" smiled Wallen. "A few wharf-rats, that's all, captain. We'll get under way now, if you're ready."

"Aye, I'm ready," Laynton replied; he was still staring, only more fixedly now at Wallen's clothes.

Wallen, following the direction of the other's eyes, glanced down—and his own eyes fixed on an ugly red smear across his pocket. He had forgotten that! It was when he had felt for a match.

"Aye, I'm ready," said Laynton again. "I was sitting up for you. Reckon finding that chap was your business, eh? Well, I—For God's sake, what's that?"

It came sudden, quick as the crack of doom—two revolver shots in rapid succession from without—and then silence.

Wallen whirled and rushed on deck, with Laynton stumbling madly behind him. There was no one in sight save Gunga, who came running to meet them from the rail—though now from forward, the crew evidently aroused, came commotion.

"What was it?" shouted Laynton excitedly. "Who fired those shots?"

"They seemed to come from there, Captain Sahib," Gunga answered impassively—and pointed forward.

With an oath Captain Laynton jumped for the ladder and swung himself down to the foredeck.

Wallen's eyes met Gunga's. "Sahib," said Gunga softly, "shall a viper sting twice? I was watching in the boat, for I knew we were ahead of him. He swims well, but once he splashed. It was Kanaka. He will swim no more, sahib."

CHAPTER VII.

The Wireless Message. Wallen stretched out his arms in a sort of glad relief as he came on deck next morning. He had breakfasted late and alone, because he had slept late—but he had slept well, once he had got to bed.

For the time being, if he wished—and he did wish it—he could be care-free and laugh with pure happiness. Drink-House Sam no longer lived before him day and night, threatening, sinister; the ship itself, with the Kanaka gone, was pure of its men; and he knew all now—and the knowledge, concrete, definite, tangible, robbed the peril that still existed of that sense of impotent dread, which is the attribute of the mysterious and the unknown.

How cloudless and blue the sky was; and the fresh, clean breeze filled the lungs as with a magical elixir! Life was good!

He had paused just outside the lounging room, and now a crackle from the wireless house caught his ear. That accounted for no sight of her upon the deck!

"Good morning, Miss MacKay!" he sung out cheerily as he hurried forward. "Found some one to gossip with this morning? I—"

He was standing in the doorway of the wireless room now, and the words died on his lips. Brown eyes, staring out from a very white face—brown eyes that seemed to hold a shudder of contempt and loathing—met his—and she turned away her head.

Optimistic Thought.

To the wise there is pleasure in solitude.

FATE'S POOR JEST

Progressive Chinaman the Victim of Hard Luck.

Only Member of His Race Capable of Making Scented Soap, He Meets Death While Conducting Chemical Experiment.

Soo Kuo is dead. And with its usual irony fate decreed that Soo Kuo, the only maker of scented soap in China, should meet death by the very means he had adopted to provide a livelihood.

Three years ago Soo Kuo worked in a small hand laundry in East Liberty, relates the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Soo Kuo had just come to the land of the white man and he was ambitious to learn the ways of the West. So one day when he heard from other of his countrymen that a class in English at which those of the Orient were welcomed was conducted at the Second Presbyterian church, he timidly applied for admittance. In this way it was that he met Edwin S. Gray, who for years had been guide, philosopher and friend to the Chinese of the city.

Soo Kuo liked the religion of the white man and it was not long before he expressed the desire to join the church. After a year he heard the call of the East and he began to plan for his return. Then he went to see Mr. Gray.

"I want to learn to make soap," he said.

And the reason was this: "Soap is very hard to get in China and it costs very much. I am going back to my land to teach the Christ and I will need money. If I learn to make soap the money will come easy."

The benefactor declared he would do what he could to gain an apprenticeship in soap making for Soo Kuo. No factory in Pittsburgh, however, would entertain the idea of permitting Soo Kuo to use it as a school, and finally Mr. Gray turned to Carnegie Tech.

Yes, they would teach Soo Kuo to make soap, and so it was that each night after his labors of the day were finished Soo Kuo would go down to Oakland and receive instructions. But practical experience was not to be had, for the reason that the school possessed no soap-making machinery.

Soo Kuo, however, had saved most of the money he had made since his advent to the new world, and soon a complete soap-making outfit was shipped to him from New York and installed in a laboratory of the school. Later the machine was to be shipped to China.

When Soo Kuo had completed his soap-manufacturing education he again went to Mr. Gray and announced:

"I want to learn to make perfume. Chinaboy likes his soap to smell good. Much more money will be made by putting perfume in it."

"But it can be purchased much cheaper than you can make it," Mr. Gray objected.

"No," declared Soo Kuo. "There are many flowers in China; I can make it very cheap."

And again Tech was appealed to and again Soo Kuo began going to night school, this time to be instructed in the manufacture of perfumes.

A year ago Soo Kuo sailed for his native land, and soon glowing accounts began coming from him in Canton regarding the success of his soap-making factory.

He had made many friends in East Liberty, having become affiliated during the last part of his stay here with the East Liberty Presbyterian church, where he was known as George Young, and these many friends heard often as to his work with the Christian school he had founded in Canton and of his beloved factory.

And then recently came the short note from Soo Kuo's brother to Mr. Gray, briefly announcing that while mixing chemicals preparatory to the making of subtle perfume an explosion had occurred and Soo Kuo had been killed. That was all.

Italians Get Names Back.

Italians returning to their native land after years of sojourn in Austria are happy to again be called by their real names. As soon as war was declared all Italians residing in Austria, who were not placed in detention camps or deported, were compelled to Austrianize their names.

Thus all proper names ending in "i," "e" or "o" were changed to the endings "ich," "lich" or "tz." Corelli became Corlicch, Corelli had to be Kuretz, Rosa was Roza, while simple Fornia grew into Fornasharich. Many other names were translated verbatim, with amusing consequences. An Italian named Torrone (Strand in English) was compelled to change his name to Mandelkuchen (almond cake).

Tires in Sections Suggested.

A solid rubber tire in sections is an attempt to lessen the high cost of motor trucking, but is suggested also for touring cars. The 12 sections are designed for easy application with ordinary tools. Each section is independent of the others, and the important advantage claimed is that without disturbing any other or removing the wheel, a worn or injured section may be taken off and replaced.

But, of Course, If It's a Lady—

"Oh, who will walk a mile with me?" queries the poet.

HEALTH RESTORED

Mr. Knight Was Down With Kidney Complaint; Found Doan's the Remedy Needed.

"Kidney trouble put me in a bad way," says Thomas A. Knight. Retired Insurance Agent, 624 N. Ninth St., East St. Louis, Ill. "It came on with pain across my back and the attacks kept getting worse until I had a spell that hid me up. Morphine was the only relief and I couldn't move without help. The kidney secretions were scanty, painful and filled with sediment."

"I was unable to leave the house, could not rest, and became utterly exhausted. The only way I could take ease was by bolting myself up with pillows. For three months I was in that awful condition and the doctor said I had gravel. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me back to good health and I have gained wonderfully in strength and weight."

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 2c per cord. This machine, which outdoes all others, has a heavy, cross cut saw driven by a powerful, especially designed 4-cycle gasoline engine. It's a fast money-maker for any man could, and does more than ten men could, either cutting down trees, sawing logs, or burning branches while you rest. When not sawing, the engine can be used for other work requiring power.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine. For moving on the road, the truck wheels are placed parallel with the skids and the log hauled straight ahead. The wheels turn on a two-way spindle. You do not have to take them off, but can change direction of wheel travel by merely taking out a pin.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. It cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting all the timber and leaving no stumps sticking up. An automatic friction clutch stops the saw in case of undue resistance. Two men can fall forty to fifty trees a day in ordinary timber. The whole outfit is compact, simple, durable against a lifetime of hard wear. It sells for a low price and is fully guaranteed for reliable operation in the hands of every one who has trees to cut down and logs to work up.

Full information and low factory price to you can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company, 2724 Wood St., Ottawa, Kansas.

Had Origin in America.
There has been much controversy over the song, "The Red, White and Blue," but the logical conclusion is that the English adapted their words from the American song, which was written by Thomas A. Becket, an Englishman, after he had made America his home. Before this song was written, in 1890, no similar version was known in England.

U. S. TO FORCE MINE OPERATION

Troops Will Protect Workers if Needed, Is the Official Edict.

BAKER TO FURNISH SOLDIERS

Department Commanders to Use Regulars to Preserve Order and Provide Protection for Those Desiring to Work.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The government served blunt notice on soft coal miners and operators that interference with coal production would not be tolerated.

Warning that legal prosecution would be employed to thwart conspiracies by either side and troops sent wherever necessary to protect miners willing to work came from the department of justice after members of the cabinet had considered every phase of the fuel situation, admittedly critical, in view of the abrupt breaking off of negotiations.

It is not the intention of the government to let the mines remain idle with half of the country in the grip of cold weather and the coal supplies rapidly diminishing.

Seizure of mines where the owners do not show a disposition to co-operate in increasing production has been decided upon, it was stated officially.

The administration, it was thought, had fully expected the miners to reject the 14 per cent wage increase offered by Fuel Administrator Garfield. Anticipating this, plans had been considered for augmenting the present output of bituminous mines, officially figured at better than 40 per cent of normal.

A statement by Assistant Attorney General Ames gave assurance to all miners that they would be afforded ample protection if they returned to work, even if troops had to be called out. This was the only definite statement of policy from the government. In official circles it was said that the federal authorities were determined to force resumption of operations on the terms laid down by the fuel administrator.

Secretary Baker, Mr. Ames said, already has authorized department commanders when requested by state authorities to use troops to preserve order. That policy provides protection for those desiring to work, he said.

Discussing department of justice plans, Mr. Ames said:

"All United States attorneys in the bituminous fields have been officially advised of the result of the negotiations at Washington and have been given instructions relative to the situation.

"It is, of course, obvious that the time has come when ample protection will be furnished all persons desiring to work in mines. All persons, whether miners or operators, making an agreement or arrangement with each other to restrict the supply of coal will be proceeded against as the law provides, and it should be understood that any person who aids or abets in restricting the supply of coal is likewise guilty by the terms of the Lever act.

"Instructions heretofore issued by the war department are still in force and, under these instructions, department commanders will act in proper cases when requested to do so by the state authorities."

Operators set out to resume production, as far as possible under the muddled conditions, by telegraphing notice for posting at mines everywhere offering an increase of 14 per cent for all men willing to work.

There were few expressions as to how this information might be relayed, but representatives of the miners still here said it would be no incentive and that it would be ignored, especially in the central competitive fields, embracing Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and western Pennsylvania.

NINE HURT IN $1,000,000 FIRE

Old Johns Hopkins University Buildings Destroyed—Firemen Are Injured.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 29.—The group of buildings formerly occupied by Johns Hopkins university and about a score of other structures in the square bounded by Howard, Ross, Monument and Eutaw streets were either destroyed or wrecked by fire. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

Heavy explosions occurred in McCoy hall, one of the university buildings. Nine firemen were injured. McCoy hall had been used recently as a welfare building and previously as the headquarters of the chemical warfare service of the army.

YANKEE WOMAN WINS

LADY ASTOR ELECTED TO COMMONS IN ENGLAND.

Has Clear Majority Over Her Opponents—Formerly Was Miss Nannie Langhorne.

Plymouth, Nov. 29.—Lady Astor, American-born wife of Viscount Astor, was elected to parliament from the Sutton division of Plymouth in the balloting of November 15.

The result was announced after a count of the ballots here this afternoon.

The vote stood:
Lady Astor, unionist, 14,404.
W. T. Gay, labor, 9,292.
Isaac Foot, liberal, 4,139.

The ceremony attending the counting of the ballots began in the historic Plymouth guildhall at 9:30 o'clock.

Lady Astor's philanthropic endeavors here during the last ten years brought her considerable support, as well as her espousal of anti-liquor legislation, which won her a large vote among the women. She drove about the constituency on a speaking tour every afternoon and evening.

The campaign attracted wide attention, due in large measure to Lady Astor's American nativity, her unconventional electioneering methods and her barbed and witty replies to questioners. Mrs. Lloyd George and other prominent political personages spoke in her behalf.

Lady Astor became a candidate after the death of Viscount Astor of Heyer hall had left her husband heir to the title and necessitated his retirement from the lower house of parliament.

Lady Astor, who was formerly Miss Nannie Langhorne of Virginia, is the mother of six children, a fact of which she boasted on one occasion during her canvass.

$4,000,000 FOR VANDERBILT

University at Nashville, Tenn., Receives Gift From the General Education Board.

New York, Nov. 29.—Vanderbilt university at Nashville, Tenn., has been given $4,000,000 by the general education board to effect an entire reorganization of its medical school, it was announced here.

The gift, the largest yet made by the board, comes from its general funds, the announcement says, and not out of John D. Rockefeller's recent donation of $20,000,000.

Detailed plans have not yet been developed, but they will involve completion of the present Galloway Memorial hospital, with enlarged facilities for public patients, creation of an additional hospital unit, organization of a modern laboratory building and the appointment of an increased number of professors.

No leniency will be shown corporations or individuals who have attempted to defraud the government, the commissioner said.

The government's drive on tax evaders thus far has netted approximately $200,000,000 more than the amount called for by the returns filed early in the year.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS SENATOR

Newberry of Michigan and 133 Political Lights of State Accused.

NAMES OF 14 MADE PUBLIC

Vast Fraud Is Charged in the Defeat of Henry Ford in the Primary and Election Campaigns of 1918.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 2.—Truman H. Newberry, United States senator from Michigan, 13 of his campaign lieutenants and 120 lesser political lights of the state were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of election fraud, corruption, conspiracy, and misuse of the mails.

Two blanket indictments were returned dealing with the primary and election campaigns of 1918 in which Henry Ford was Senator Newberry's chief opponent.

Government officials asserted that the testimony presented to the grand jury had revealed a political scandal that in many respects was without parallel in American annals. They said it extended from the most populous wards of Detroit to the Indian reservations on the shores of Lake Superior, where aborigines were voted according to the behest of the Newberry campaign organization.

It was alleged that voters were bribed, election boards corrupted, editors subsidized, and moving picture theaters bought up in the endeavor to defeat Henry Ford, first in the primaries of both parties, and later, when he had won the Democratic nomination, in the election itself.

Judge Clarence W. Sessions of the federal district, to whose court the grand jury reported, indicated that the evidence disclosed the fraudulent expenditure of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in connection with the election.

The men whose names were announced will be arraigned on Monday, December 8. The extreme penalty which may be imposed under the indictments is a fine of $10,000 and two years imprisonment.

The identity of only the chief figures in the case was revealed in court. On instructions from Judge Sessions the names of the others were impounded to be made public only when their owners have been served with warrants. The 14 names made public were:

Truman H. Newberry, United States senator and secretary of the navy in the Roosevelt administration.

John S. Newberry, Detroit, brother of the senator, who contributed $90,000 to the campaign.

Paul H. King, Detroit, general manager of the Newberry campaign.

Allen A. Templeton, president of the Detroit chamber of commerce and chairman of the Newberry campaign.

Harry O. Turner, Detroit, broker and son of James Turner, former auditor general of Michigan. He was assistant secretary of the Newberry campaign.

Mark T. McKee, Detroit, law partner of King. He was prominent in the Red Cross organization in Michigan and in fraternal circles. Government investigators charge his activities were mostly camouflage for politics.

Harry A. Hopkins, Detroit, publicity manager of campaign and former president of the State Publishers' association, legislative clerk of the United States senate.

Charles A. Floyd, Detroit, who was in charge of the country organizations for the Newberry campaign. Formerly head of the Michigan state fair.

Frederick C. Smith, Detroit, manager of the Newberry estate in Detroit.

Milton Oakman, former Wayne county sheriff and for ten years Republican "boss" in Detroit.

Judd McKay, assignment clerk in the Detroit courts.

Gladstone V. Beattie, former sheriff of Van Buren county and county manager for Newberry.

TIME LIMIT SET FOR RELEASE OF CONSULAR AGENT JENKINS.

Carranza Refuses to Free American Who Is Charged With Complicity in Own Kidnaping.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The state department announced that its note had been sent to Carranza in rejoinder to the Mexican government's communication refusing the American demand for the "immediate release" of William O. Jenkins, American consular agent, held prisoner in the Puebla penitentiary.

The note has been in preparation for three days and is understood to be the government's "last word" to Mexico.

Although there was no announcement as to what the note contained, it was understood that the American government had demanded not only the instant release of Consul Jenkins, but that a time limit had been fixed.

It was intimated that in the event of Carranza's failure to order Jenkins' immediate release troops would be sent over the Rio Grande at once.

Whether the government plans intervention or merely a punitive expedition to Puebla to free Jenkins could not be ascertained.

Mexico City, Nov. 28.—Declaring there is "no legal foundation nor principle of international law" upon which the United States bases its demand for the immediate release of William O. Jenkins, United States consular agent at Puebla, the Mexican government, through Hilario Medina, under-secretary of foreign relations, stated it was impossible to accede to the request of the American state department.

It is asserted that the executive department cannot under Mexican law intervene at this moment in an affair which is strictly in the hands of state courts.

It is declared the imprisonment of Mr. Jenkins was neither unjustified nor arbitrary and that Mr. Jenkins is preventing his own freedom by refusing to give bail, for which reason, it is said, "he cannot be considered a victim of molestation."

Washington, Nov. 27.—The state department's demand upon the Mexican government was for the "immediate release" of Consul Agent Jenkins, who is still held in the penitentiary, charged with complicity in his own kidnaping.

WARTIME COAL REGIME BEGINS

U. S. Puts Into Force All the Rules Adopted During Hostilities.

FUEL LID IS CLAMPED DOWN

Order Means Big Shutdown of Industries Throughout the Country—Retailers Cautioed on Distribution—Only Essentials to Be Served.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Wartime restrictions on the consumption of coal were ordered into effect for the period of the present strike emergency.

Fuel Administrator Garfield, acting in conjunction with the railroad administration, announced that only the industries included in the first five classes of the priority list established during the war would be furnished coal, and the public utilities would be asked to discontinue furnishing power, heat and light to nonessential industries.

The industries to which coal will be furnished will be railroads, coastwise and inland shipping, army and navy and other government departments and institutions, public utilities, including newspapers, and retail dealers supplying household consumers.

State and local authorities, Dr. Garfield said, will be asked to co-operate, though the rationing of coal will be done through the regional coal committees set up by the railroad administration.

Railroad administration officials conceded that the application of the order would mean an industrial shutdown of considerable magnitude, but declined to make a definite estimate. Industrial establishments operating from their own power plants, it was said, probably would have to stop when their present coal supply became exhausted.

Industries operating on power supplied by public utility companies may continue operation unless the management of the public utility companies supplying them and the local authorities rule that they are nonessential. For the present the railroad administration will not attempt to lay down a rule as to what is an essential industry.

"It is necessary that coal shall be used only for essential purposes," said Dr. Garfield's statement, explaining the government's action. "Public utilities consuming coal should discontinue to furnish power, heat and light to nonessential industries and should only consume sufficient coal to produce enough light, power and heat to meet the actual urgent needs of the people. Advertising signs and displays of various kinds necessitating the use of coal should be curtailed and no coal should be distributed for such purpose."

"Pursuant to this policy I have requested the railroad administration in the distribution of coal now or hereafter in its possession to limit distribution to these essential and urgent uses. As far as practicable until the distribution of coal will be limited to conditions warrant a change, the distribution of coal will be limited to the first five classes of the priority list."

"Retail dealers who distribute coal for household requirements, heating, hotels, buildings, hospitals, etc., should take every precaution to see that coal is only delivered where it is absolutely required, and then only in such limited quantities that the supply may be distributed widely and prevent suffering."

"The state and other local authorities can materially aid in inspecting and supervising such distribution by retail dealers, and the United States government will be glad to leave the supervision and control of such distribution by retail dealers entirely to any state, county or municipality which may make provision therefor."

"The distribution to the retail dealers must necessarily be administered by the railroad administration in pursuance of the orders already made by the United States fuel administration in carrying out the priorities which have been prescribed under the Lever act."

FOUND AT LAST

Sometimes we are looking for a thing vainly, although the thing is very near, only to grasp it. And we may truly rejoice if we are fortunate enough to find it, because, as the saying goes, "that is not lost which comes at last." So writes Mr. F. J. I was in western Kansas this summer, and they got me to try Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, so I got three bottles, and it helped me. I will keep it in my house from now on." How "Uncle Joe" Fed the Yanks

Son of United States Senator Found France No Place for "Classy" Clothes.

ESTABLISHED FIRST K. C. HUT

Served 2,000 Cups of Chocolate Every Morning—Had Many Difficulties to Surmount and Encountered Many Exciting Experiences.

New York.—This is the story of how in France, of 2,000 cups of hot chocolate; of the kitchen car that supplied the chocolate; of two Tuxedo coats and two evening suits and of "Uncle Joe," writes Owen Conner in the New York Herald.

The dawn was not the pink sunrise of America—it was the ghastly, gray, grim break of day of gas-befouled and shell-torn battlefields. The chocolate was the morning heartener served to men on their way to face death. The kitchen car was one of the proud possessions of Knights of Columbus war workers. "Uncle Joe" was and is Joseph F. Kernan of Utica, N. Y., and the Argonne, a K. of C. secretary of personal distinction and of enviable record for service.

There is a new dawn in France, pink and rosy now. Hot chocolate figures largely in high cost of living tables. The kitchen car went down to its doom on the glorious pathway opened by the Americans to Sedan, but it didn't fall until just at the very end, after it had done "its duty noble." "Uncle Joe" is back in America, hale and hearty, sixty years young, patrolling the Bowerly looking for and finding soldiers he met on the seething rims of the cauldron of enemy hate over there. Oh, yes, by the way, the two Tuxedo coats and the two evening suits are here also.

Nicknamed "Uncle Joe." He wasn't "Uncle Joe" until after he had gone to France. He loves the nickname, for it was given him by American soldiers—in fact he likes it better than any yet name ever bestowed upon him in the days he sparked the girls at old-time dances. However, I promised not to tell about that.

Mr. Kernan is the son of Francis Kernan, once United States senator from New York. He was appointed an overseas secretary by the Knights of Columbus in March, 1918. To him fell the honor of establishing the first K. of C. hut in France, in May, 1918. From the start the possibilities of service of the kitchen car appealed to his imagination and he couldn't be torn away from the front where he had a chance to work for the soldiers with the kitchen car as a base of operations. After he had opened several K. of C. huts, he went to Paris, took possession of a kitchen car and went up to Chery with it. There the Seventy-seventh division was fighting and it was the men of that division who nicknamed him "Uncle Joe." He insists that full credit must be given to Frederick Bundschau of Louisville, Ky., and to Louis Lasage for the able and devoted assistance given by them. Here is his story as he tells it himself.

"When I started for France I was told there would be considerable 'entertaining' to be done on the other side. I realized very quickly, once I set foot in France, that the entertaining to be done was along entirely different lines than those with which I had left New York. For example, I started out with several trunks. One of them held two Tuxedo coats and two evening suits. On my arrival in France I promptly forgot all about that trunk. It didn't fit in with the scheme of things as I saw it with my own eyes. I'll tell you more about the trunk later.

"Immediately after landing I went to Baccarat, in the Luneville sector. With me was Fred Bundschau of Louisville, a splendidly loyal and efficient man. We opened a hut at Baccarat. Then I went to Camp Devre, known correctly as 'Mud camp.'

"Some time later I went to Paris, where I seized a K. C. kitchen car and carried it off to the front at Chery. That was the thing to do your entertaining with and I'll tell the whole wide world that a Tuxedo or an evening coat would have been as funny there as a suit of overalls at the opera.

"You see the car began work at dawn—in the summer that means four o'clock in France. We weren't allowed to build a fire before daylight—it might have aided the enemy. We got out of our bunks. Fred Bundschau, Louis Lasage and I, at a little after three, started the fires going as soon as we could get permission and then moved the car to a point where the men going out to the trenches and the men coming back would pass each other.

"Our greatest pride was that we were able to serve and did serve 2,000 cups of hot chocolate there every morning, besides giving out cigarettes and other supplies to the soldiers. And we kept it going, too, every day.

Hard to Get Sugar. "There were difficulties to be surmounted. The greatest of these was to obtain our own supplies of chocolate and sugar. Many times our trucks could not get through because there was so much artillery and ammunition on the move. We simply had to have the supplies for the boys. After some thought a way was worked out. The ambulances had been coming up to the front empty. They had right of way on the roads after the artillery.

"The ambulance men agreed to bring up our stuff on the trips to the firing line and they did it. Wasn't that splendid of them? All through the hours of many nights the hospital cars tore up to our headquarters, dumped our boxes of food and cigarettes and then took on the wounded men.

"We stayed with the men of the Seventy-seventh and moved when they did. That kitchen car was the apple of my eye. It did wonderful service on more than one sector. Then when the march to Sedan began we put the car in line and started with the soldiers.

Wad of Chewing Gum Discovered in Eel

Royalton, Pa.—John Pennington, who has an eel camp along the Juniata river, has discovered the original chewing-gum eel. While cleaning eels he found a substance adhering to the inside walls of a large eel's stomach. Investigation proved this to be a well-masticated wad of chewing gum.

The eel probably had been in the mouth of a fair damsel who canoed on the moonlit waters of the river, listening to a lover's croonings, and in a fit of rare ecstasy dropped the gum from her lips, it being gobbled up by the eel who happened that way. The wad of gum plainly showed the marks of human teeth.

U.S. OFFER REFUSED

GOVERNMENT PROPOSAL TURNED DOWN BY MINERS; PARLEY BREAKS UP IN ROW.

SNEER AT 14 PCT. INCREASE

Conference of Operators and Miners in Efforts to End Tieup Adjourns Sine Die—Cabinet Offer Draws Bitter Denunciation.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The government's offer of a 14 per cent increase of wages was flatly rejected by the coal miners.

As a result the conference between the miners and operators adjourned sine die with the settlement of the wage controversy still "in the air." No provision was made for the resumption of the conference, the miners declaring "that they were going home and sit tight."

The miners' rejection came after the operators had accepted the government's proposal as a basis for a settlement although they declared that the increase without raising the price of coal to the public would mean the loss of profits to a large number of mines and would seriously interfere with production.

After the rejection the operators tendered a compromise offering to submit the entire dispute to a board of arbitration. This also was refused by the miners and the conference took an adjournment.

Statement by Lewis

The following statement was dictated by Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers:

"The miners and operators' joint conference adjourned sine die. The mine workers' representatives declined to recommend to the miners any acceptance of the 14 per cent increase offered.

"The operators pretended to be willing to grant this 14 per cent increase, but in the same breath stated that they would be unable to operate a large number of their mines unless they had an increase in the selling price of coal. It would be foolish for us to attempt to make any agreement with the operators unless their mines were to be operated.

"The position of the mine workers is unchanged. We hold that the United States government cannot break its word. The pledge given by Secretary of Labor Wilson to grant a 31.6 per cent increase in wages must be redeemed.

"In my judgment Doctor Garfield and the cabinet have committed the most colossal blunder in the industrial history of our nation. They are blindly following an academic theory without regard to justice to the mine workers or the effects of such theory upon the people of the country.

Says Justice Is Denied

"The responsibility for the crisis now confronting the nation must lie upon those statesmen who are using the powers of the government to oppress and deny justice to the great element of citizenship directly concerned in the mining industry.

"I cannot believe that the people of our country will indorse a policy of oppression and repression which means continued industrial chaos, and intense suffering on the part of the mine workers and our entire citizenship."

The letter sent to Doctor Garfield by the operators of the central competitive coal field, accepting the government's offer, reads:

"Recognizing the seriousness of the present crisis and the urgent need of the country for coal, we wish to advise you that, subject to your approval and conditioned upon the mines resuming operations immediately, the operators' senate committee of the central competitive coal field accept, as a basis for the settlement of the present wage controversy and termination of the strike, the figures submitted by you to the joint meeting of operators and miners held yesterday evening, namely, an average increase of 14 per cent to be granted to all classes of mine labor, such increase to be apportioned in accordance with the wage bases that are acceptable to the employees and employers, thus preserving present differentials. Otherwise than as above, modified in complete accordance with your proposal, the present contract in all its term and conditions to be continued in full force and effect until March 31, 1922.

"We have already notified the miners to this effect.

Says Profits Eliminated

"At the same time we wish to call your attention to the fact that the acceptance of this increase in wages without any increase in selling prices entirely eliminates the profits of a large number of mines. Such a large number, in fact, we fear that the production of coal will be seriously affected. We understand that operating statistics for 1919 are not now in your possession, and we shall rely upon the government, when such statistics are properly assembled and presented, to make such adjustments in selling prices as will permit these mines to make such fair and reasonable profits as they are entitled to under the Lever law."

William Green, secretary of the United Mine Workers, said:

"Secretary of Labor Wilson states that the mine workers are entitled to an increase in wages amounting to 31.6 per cent. Mr. Garfield says 14 per cent. Obviously these two conclusions conflict with each other and, to say the least, are confusing. The mine workers know the figures of Secretary of Labor Wilson are approximately correct and the figures of Doctor Garfield are erroneous. The mine workers challenge the figures of Doctor Garfield and cannot and will not accept them. We will accept the figures of a responsible cabinet officer, Secretary Wilson.

"Doctor Garfield, because of the responsible position which he occupies, has done a great injustice to a million miners in America. His statement and decision has served to inject into the settlement of the miners' wage controversy an almost insurmountable obstacle. In that respect his action approaches the commission of a moral crime against the public.

"Mine workers cannot mine coal at the figures fixed by Doctor Garfield. The acceptance of his conclusion would mean untold sacrifice, suffering and deprivation on the part of the miners and their families. The problem of decent wages and a decent American standard of living, together with an adequate production of coal cannot be solved as a college professor would work out a problem in geometry, algebra or theoretical philosophy.

"The practical way to solve the present problem of coal production is to grant the miners an increase in wages sufficient to meet the increase in the cost of living and to guarantee them an American standard of living. They will then risk their lives in the mines, accept all the hazards of the industry and mine a steady stream of coal sufficient to meet every requirement."

Garfield's Ruling

Acting under instructions from the cabinet, United States Fuel Administrator Garfield told the coal miners and the operators that the wage increase for the miners should be 14 per cent and that the price of coal to the public should not be raised.

Some of the miners' representatives declared that the offer of a 14 per cent increase, in the face of the fact that Secretary of Labor Wilson had offered them 31.6 per cent, was an insult. They declared that the miners would starve idle rather than go back to the mines at this wage increase.

The operators, who have been expecting that the government would see them through on any wage increase, declared that their margins would not permit them to give the miners the 14 per cent out of their own pockets. They said that it would break many of the weaker mines and that it meant ruin and sacrifice of years of earnings and savings.

Garfield Admits

The operators for the most part bore their disappointment in silence, but from the miners came denunciation after denunciation of the government's solution. Without reservation, and without mincing words, the miners questioned Doctor Garfield and, through him, grilled the government for more than two hours.

Doctor Garfield stood adamant in the face of the questions and the criticism hurled at him from the miners' side of the hall. He answered all questions without betraying personal excitement and firmly but kindly told the miners that what he had laid before them was purely a series of facts.

Doctor Garfield said his statement was made on the facts and the figures in the case as he had investigated it. He said that it was as if one looked up at the clock and there read the time.

"The clock tells you the hour, and that is what I have done. I tell you that per cent of increase which should be applied to the miners' wages, on the average to equalize wages with the rise in the cost of living is 14 per cent," said Doctor Garfield.

Shot From Other Barrel

Dr. Garfield was equally insistent on his finding that the price of coal should not be raised at this time. This was a shot fired from the other barrel of his double-barreled statement to the conference. He made it clear that the facts, as he found them, meant that if the miners' wages were increased 14 per cent, as he said should be done, that the burden should be borne entirely by the operators and not by the public.

Dr. Garfield also made a third statement, which almost ranks in importance with his two main propositions. This was that government control of price will be maintained at present. This means that the government does not intend to relax its grip on the coal situation through holding prices within a maximum limit.

You Can Get 210 More Eggs per Hen a Year

It is a recognized fact that average grain fed Hens form about 280 YOLKS per year. U. S. Government records show that only an average of 70 EGGS are produced out of this possible 280. Why? Because grain fed Hens lack the proper albumen or whites necessary to complete the eggs—thus a waste an average loss of 210 eggs per hen yearly. The missing 210 yolks which are never "shelled out" are absorbed into the Hen's system.

EGG-A-DAY Dry Mash fed Hens will produce as many EGGS as they produce YOLKS—which means an average of about 210 more eggs per Hen a year. EGG-A-DAY Dry Mash is a food that produces the necessary whites and shells to allow every yolk "to be shelled out" properly—instead of being absorbed into the Hen's system. EGG-A-DAY is most economical. Absolutely no waste—no mixing,
